How we're keeping you safe

Enhanced Cleaning

We've beefed up our already strict cleaning practices and will ensure all high-touch areas like doorknobs and shared surfaces are disinfected frequently and in accordance with public health guidelines.

Distancing Measures

We've reduced the capacity in our shared rooms to only one person per bunkbed, unless you're travelling together as a group. Unfortunately, we'll be cancelling any hostel activities for the time being, to avoid bringing groups of people together.

Guest Protection

Hand sanitizing stations have been placed throughout our hostels. We also encourage you to wear a cloth face covering if you're unable to keep your distance, and most hostels will have disposable masks available for a small price.

Privacy Options

We've increased the availability of private dorms wherever possible. That means at some hostels you can choose to book out an entire dorm room for yourself or your party.

Reduced Capacity

In addition to placing clear instructions in shared spaces around physical distancing requirements, we've also reduced the capacity in our shared spaces. You'll find a maximum occupancy sign outside each space—from kitchens to elevators.

Staff Training

Our staff have received additional training on hygiene protocols and procedures as we continue to monitor and implement industry and public health best practice
